EU Work-life Balance Directive

The EU Work-life Balance Directive (Directive (EU) 2019/1158) was adopted on 24th January 2019. It's the first legislative initiative that follows the launch of the European Pillar of Social Rights.

It facilitates the reconciliation of work and family life for workers who are parents, or carers.

It covers aspects of:

- Time by providing minimum standards on family leaves and flexible working arrangements
- Resources through the adequate payment for certain leaves
- And paves the way for future action on access to Services (ECEC and LTC)

1 2nd August 2022 was the deadline of transposition for Member States

Key elements of the Directive

The Directive provides for individual rights related to the following:

- Paternity leave: individual right to 10 working days for fathers or equivalent second parents, irrespective of worker's qualification, length of service and marital status
- Parental leave: 4 months for each parent as an individual right, 2 months non-transferable, flexibility in take up
- Carers' leave: 5 working days a year, unpaid
- Flexible working arrangements for workers with children
- Promoting equality between women and men
- Diversity of families "equivalent second parent"
- Adequate payments of paternity, parental and carers' leave

COFACE Report & Findings

- Transposition assessment by COFACE Families Europe: A mixed picture -From non-compliance and basic minimum standards to ambitious reforms for modern gender-responsive family policies
- 10 MS: BE, DE, ES, FI, FR, HU, HR, IT, LT, PL
- Paternity leave, parental leave and carers' leave
- Published in October 2022
- Some Member States went beyond the Directive's standards (e.g. ES paternity leave)
- Parental leave is low-paid in many countries (e.g. FR, BE, IT)
- Non-transferability (some min. 2 months, other BE 4 months)
- Majority of the Member States provide the opportunity to take up parental leave in a part-time, short-time and piecemeal way.
- Diversity equivalent second parent, same-sex couples, adoption, single-parents are eligible but not everywhere

Challenges and Priorities

We need the full transposition of the Directive - not the case today

Member States need to go beyond the Directive's standards Adequate payment to ensure take-up – making leaves attractive

Ensuring diversity – eligibility of same-sex couples, adoptive parents, single parents Non-transferability of leaves – gender equality, combatting stereotypes

Intergenerational approach – all generations must be considered from children to elderly

We need transformative systems – transformative, gender-responsive reforms – focus both mothers and fathers

Impact on children – you can help children if you help their parents

Accessibility for all workers (self-employed)

Future Implications

Thank you!
